Scheduling Meetings - TimeBridge

Discussion created by Ethan Mings on 9/20/2009 7:54 AM

Ethan Mings

Posted by Ethan Mings on 9/20/2009 7:54 AM

I continue to experiment with various web-based tools for scheduling meetings. To date, I have found MeetingWizard is fun and it works. The only challenge I've had is when it makes a mistake in time, it wipes out my Blackberry Calendar. The mistake is often a wrong time setting (saying 11:00 pm instead of 11:00 am) which corrupts the data base on my end. The fix is simple. However, I suspect users will not find it much fun to walk through the correction process.

I still think it is a great little application.

If you are looking for an alternative that works really well, give TimeBridge a try. You can find it at http://www.timebridge.com. I like it. Works well and just had a nice update done on the package.

Let me know if you do try it and it a your experience.

Sheila LeGeros

Posted by Sheila LeGeros on 9/22/2009 2:42 PM

Thanks for telling us about Timebridge. I just set-up my first meeting and found it very user-friendly. I also love that it syncs with iCal and my iPhone.

It looks like it has quite a few nice features over and above MeetingWizard!

Sheila